

Pressure Washers

The Long Beach Water Department does not encourage people to use water in order to clean outdoor surfaces. Using water to clean these surfaces requires an awful lot of a precious resource (i.e., drinking water), and often leads to runoff that flows into our treasured coastal zone. When using water is absolutely necessary, use a pressure washer. Pressure washers use much less water than a hose while doing a better job. A pressure washer uses approximately less than 2 gpm (gallons per minute) ~ a hose can use 20 gpm or more! A push-broom reduces water use by 100%.

The following is a list of pressure washers appropriate for residential properties. This is not an exhaustive list. The Long Beach Water Department provides this list as a courtesy to our customers; we do not recommend nor endorse any of these devices; prices shown may not reflect current pricing.

How much water pressure you'll need depends on what you are trying to clean. You'll want about 1000 psi (pounds per square inch) or more to substantially effect your cleaning.

For non-residential properties, please go to <http://www.mwdsaveabuck.com/broom.htm> to view a pressure washer that qualifies for a $150 rebate.
